Can you design and make your own pirate underpants?

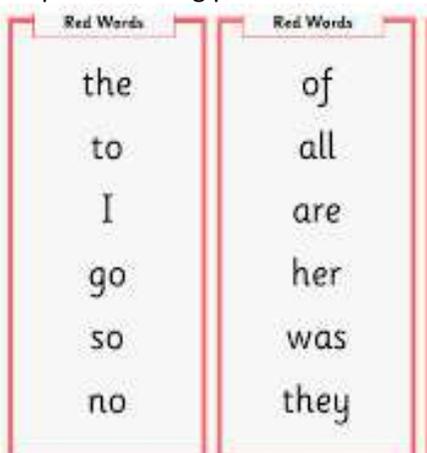

You can use any materials. we would love to see a

Birdwatching

At the end of January, the RSPB ask people to count

Can you practise reading and writing these red words? Maybe you could use them in a game of snap or matching pairs.

Can you find some objects from around your house and find out if the float or sink in a bowl of water? You can record your results and share them on EeXat?

Try testing a coin, cork, feather, stone, orange (peeled and unpeeled). Are there any objects which surprise you?

Could you make a list of the birds you see in your garden? You could also try putting out some nuts and seeds to see if that encourages any birds to visit. You could also make some binoculars or a telescope!

Making lunch

Can you make or help to make your own lunch?

Think about all the things you need to do in order to prepare a meal – for example washing hands, getting things out, finding a plate, spreading butter for a sandwich, washing up etc.

Perhaps you could take a photograph of the lunch you have prepared.

Role play schools

Can you set up a mini school at home?

Can you test your mum, dad, little brother, teddy bears on their phonics sounds and numbers? can you read them a story?

What are your school rules? What time does the school day begin and end? What is on your timetable?

Maybe you could have a star of the week or a special day person.

Extreme reading challenge

We would like to see you reading. Can you find an interesting book to read?

Maybe in a tent that you have built, under your bed, in the car!

Which book will you choose?
